Life is But a Dream ©

When first we come from the Spirit Realms,
We know why we have come.
Then, we strive and struggle and end up in a muddle,
And wonder why we bothered to come.
We could have stayed in the Land of Light,
Peaceful and easy, ever-growing amidst God's tenderness.
But, we chose to come, chose to be pruned, chose to live
This precious gift of becoming ~ becoming a stronger, more glorious soul,
A brighter Firefly, a more powerful Lantern of God's Light.

The seasons pass, the days fly by like dandelion fluff in the wind.
Life does seem but a dream, and in the Eternal Reality, it is.
But, as you reach out with your Inner Beams of Light,
Touching the wonders of your world and its inhabitants,
You will observe that Life is but a dream,
But a dream of magnificent proportion, of never-ending
Shifts and changes, "clouds" forming and dispersing,
Dropping their life-giving moisture of love into your life,
Dropping new chances to become fresh and green once more.

Life's pleasures are elusive ~ daily doses of joy are not.
Choose to make your waking and sleeping Earthly Dreams
More fluid, more valuable, more real while residing in your world.
Do, indeed, row your Life's Boat gently and merrily
Down the Stream of Eternal Life,
Letting go of that which has broken free of its moorings,
And is ready to flow down the Stream.
Bless and gently let go of your loved ones
When their time has come to return to the Great Awakening.
Let go of your striving, your fears of failure and of success.
Let go of the wounds and worries you cling to,
Thinking they will make you more real, keep you afloat.

This day is a dream, as are all the days to come upon Earth.
And yet, this day is a jewel, a sweet daydream of hope,
Of opportunities, grace and sweetness,
Of chances to test your mettle, depth and eternal spiritual power,
And your capability to love like no other day before.
Take this day to your soul's heart, dream though it may be,
And dream a little dream of greatness and mercy,
Of beauty beyond comprehension.
View your dreams in childlike wonder, awe and playfulness,
And above all Divine Creativity!

For God will sweep you into His arms
And comfort you in sorrow and fear,
Strengthen you when you are weakened and lost,
Rekindle your Spark of Life, and inspire you when you are closed to the Light.
Together, we shall create a better home for all on Earth,
each new day, each new dawning.
Now that is truly a dream worth dreaming!
Dare to dream! Dare to live! Dare to experience magnificence!
